

Philosophy of Coaching

An International Journal

CALL FOR SUBMISSIONS | Theme: Systems and/or Systemic Coaching

Deadline: Feb 1, 2019.

Coaches are increasingly working with systems—relationships, partnerships, families, teams, divisions and whole organizations—as well as with the whole person systems that live within each of us. In this issue, which is produced in partnership with Columbia University’s 2018 International Coaching Conference, we invite papers that address the following questions:

- What are the unique characteristics of systems/systemic coaching? How is it different from other types of coaching?
- What theoretical frameworks and/or empirical evidence supports systems/systemic coaching?
- What are some of the challenges, theoretical and practical, when coaching systems/coaching systemically?
- What tools support systems/systemic coaching and how do we know they are effective?
- What can we learn from case studies in systems/systemic coaching?
- Which are the leading organizations offering education and training in systems/systemic coaching, and how do they differ, one from another?

Submissions may be:

- Research Papers (5,000 words approx.) that bring together multiple, well-researched perspectives on a given topic
- Position Papers (3,000 words approx.) that articulate a single, well-researched perspective on a given topic
- Book Reviews (1,000-2,000 words approx.) that summarize, reflect on and evaluate books relevant to coaches that have been published in the past 12 months (Book Reviews do not need to relate directly to the theme).
- Response Papers (1,000 words approx.) that take up and respond to ideas, themes and perspectives published in previous issues of Philosophy of Coaching (available at philosophyofcoaching.org)

The deadline for submissions is February 1st, 2019, for publication in May 2019.
